

Name: - Jyosthna
Course: - DCS +

Mobile Number:
DATE: / / 20
PAGE No 798869511

①. Power Supply :- The electricity supplied to the set of computer with the help of computer to operate or computer take any action is known as power supply.

• Motherboard :- Motherboard is an important hardware which are very important to computer. Some eg:- RAM, ROM etc.

②. System software :- System software is a software of computer which play an important role to process the computer to take further action. System means systematic steps with the help of a computer work. (The process of an program in systematic way) etc.

③. Application software :- (The application software are the software which also play important role in computer process. There are many large no. of application software for eg Microsoft office, etc. for eg Facebook etc.)

• System software :- (This is different software than application software. The application software there is no need in programming language but in system software there is need of programming language.

(4) The output devices are the devices which give an information to users in human understandable. There are many devices related to output devices. For eg. (1) Printer. (2) Monitor screen.

(5) Input unit :- The information which we give to the computer to take an action which are not computer understandable without input unit computer cannot work.

• CPU :- CPU stand for central processing unit. It is also known as brain of computer. because it make out input into computer understandable. It play very important role in process of Computer.

Output Unit :- After the ~~the~~ input input unit, Computer gives back an output in the form of result, which are again human understandable. The output unit is a unit which gives the result according to the input given by the user. For eg Printer part.